Are your life, family or friends' lives "Life Jacket Worthy"?

Just like learning to drive a car or sail a boat, you have taken lessons to be safe. Wearing a life jacket isn't worn because you can't swim, it's bigger than that. Accidents happen, it's a fact of life, but taking preventative measures are things we do every day. We get in a car, put on our seat belt; ride a bicycle, put on a helmet; ski or snowboard, put on another helmet. These are natural things we automatically do now days, and feel uncomfortable when we don't. Challenge yourself to think that just because you "feel safe" on the water, doesn't mean an accident can't happen. So, this summer be sure your life jackets are in great condition, and that you have one for each of your crew, and that they are wearing them. It's part of preparing your vessel, like making sure you have air in your tires!

And the Oscar goes to.....

Well, ok, it's not really an Oscar, more like a crystal award for "Best Small Marina of the Year 2016" by Marina Dock Age Magazine.

As many of you know, we were selected as "Best Small Marina of the Year" for the United States by this publication. It was based on questions they asked, photographs and our business philosophy. Casey and I flew back to St. Louis, MO, back in November to accept this prestigious award from the managing editor, Anna Townsend. It was a wonderful, yet very quick trip, to see another part of the marina industry that we would not normally have the pleasure of seeing.

So, why am I mentioning this, yet again? As part of being selected, we will be gracing the cover of March's issue of Marina Dock Age Magazine. We are very excited to share this with you. If you would like a copy of the cover or story inside, I would be happy to email or give you a copy of the write up.

We are very excited to share this with all of you that make Owl Harbor Marina such a special and unique place. I've always felt it was special, but little did I know just how special it would become.

Thank you for being here, being a part of a wonderful community and for sharing a part of your life dreams with us.

The image shows the front cover of the March issue of Marina Dock Age magazine. The title "Marina DOCK AGE" is prominently displayed in large white letters. Below the title is a circular logo for "Marina of the Year". The main photograph on the cover is of Owl Harbor Marina in Isleton, California, showing several boats docked at a marina. At the bottom of the cover, the text "Owl Harbor Marina Isleton, California" is written, along with a small white box containing some text and a list of contents on the right side.
